EVEN a blind man could have told that it was hot in Honolulu during the past few days. Thermometers and "such" have not been necessary to ascertain the palpable fact that it was hot. One had only to hear the little drop-lets softly patter as they went trickling down one's spinal column, and to feel one's shirt collar gently willing to real-ize that it was hot.

Even the oldest kamaainas had to admit, though reluctantly, that it was hot. They came out in their coolest du-ks and braved the sun unflinchingly for the first day or so of the hot spell, but it was noticeable that yesterday they ceased to boast how little they minded the heat and mopped their brows openly and unashamed and said unprintable things about the weather as heartily as the latest arrived malihini.

The weather man said it wasn't hot, but when did the weather man ever agree with the suffering public on any question? And it was small wonder that Professor Lyons could not be convinced that the weather was anything unusual. Out in his cool and comfortable residence in Punahou it was many degrees cooler than down town, where the breezes blew as from ovens and the sun had baked the sidewalks so that they sweated and ground. Professor Lyons' thermometer, by which for eight or nine years he has kept a record of the weather of Honolulu, said that the maximum temperature during the past four days was 85. For four successive days the thermometer has touched this figure, and Professor Lyons said that this is somewhat unusual, as 82 or 83 is about the average for this season. With the sun as high in the heavens as it is now it is quite usual to have a warm spell, but it seldom lasts more than a day or so at the outside. An ameliorating circumstance of the hot spell has been the low figure at which a thermometer had been read, and, Professor Lyons mildly stated as a result of the iting and the blow that day, but during the rest of the week it reached no higher than 72, while the past three days it has hovered at about 65. This is far below the normal figure for the season. For the average humidity for June is 72.

It will be interesting to note that the highest temperature ever observed at the Honolulu station, during the eighteen years in which Professor Lyons has had charge was 90 degrees. Only on one or two occasions has the thermometer ever gone as high as 85, and only the single instance of its passing that figure is to be found in the records.

With the prevailing winds a drop in the temperature is anticipated within a day or so, although it is likely that warm weather will probably prevail unless the dry spell is broken within a short time.

Lieut. Comdr. J. H. Bull, detached Newark and to Dixie.

Mrs. H. T. Salisbury, of 11 Follett Street, Pawtucket, R. I., says:

"About eight years ago, I was taken with nervous prostration which was followed by a partial paralysis of the lower limbs. The doctor called it locomotor ataxia. I could not direct my steps, and I would often fall down. I tried many remedies but was not benefited until I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

Several doctors had told me that there was no cure for my trouble, but my improvement continued and I took the pills steadily for two years. At the end of that time I had regained full control of my limbs. The pain left me and has never returned."
